PRESIDENT CALHOUN TELLS THE MAYOR WHY HE WOULD NOT TREAT WITH GALLAGHER

Position of the United Railroads Fully Set Forth by Its President ---Some Sharp Language Is Used.

Mr. Patrick Calhoun furnished to-day a copy of the recent correspondence between Mayor Edward R. Taylor and himself in regard to a requested interview with Mr. Calhoun by Mr. Andrew J. Gallagher, as president of the Labor Council, with a view to settlement of the carmen's strike, and a memorandum of the conversation that took place between Mayor Taylor and himself Saturday morning.

Commenting upon this correspondence and Mayor Taylor's published interview of Sunday morning, Mr. Calhoun said:

CALHOUN TALKS.

"I have no antagonism to organized labor. Labor has the right to organize, and can beneficially organize. It can usefully co-operate for mutual improvement. It can lawfully agree as to the rate of wages at which it is willing to work, and can lawfully refuse to work, as individuals or as a body, if its demands are not met.

PRESIDENT CALHOUN TELLS MAYOR WHY HE WOULD NOT TREAT WITH GALLAGHER

we may be employed by organized labor both against the employer and against other laborers that are at work.

AS TO LIBERTY.

"My meeting now with these leaders and discussing with them any concession necessarily involves a recognition of this unlawful doctrine for which they stand. To my mind, such a concession is disastrous to the social interests of this city. Such a doctrine is un-American, contrary to the fundamental principles of human liberty, destructive of the benefits of our American Union, which guarantees the right of free movement of citizens from one State to another and their right to work wherever they please, and is intended and well calculated to erect by force and violence a labor wall around San Francisco which must seriously curtail her growth, handicap her in the race with her rivals on this coast and seriously retard her rehabilitation.

"Never in the history of America has the principle of freedom of employer and freedom of employee been more important than in San Francisco at this moment. With credit shaken to the foundation, every class of men in San Francisco is interested in that policy which insures the safety of the individual against violence and coercion, the protection of property and the establishment of good government."

THE MAYOR'S LETTER.

The correspondence follows:

"San Francisco, August 21, 1907.

Patrick Calhoun, Esq., President,

United Railroads company, San Francisco.

My dear Sir:—It occurs to me that under existing conditions the street car strike can be speedily brought to a close by concessions on the part of your company that you would be willing to make. I gather this from a conversation recently had with Mr. Andrew J. Gallagher, president of San Francisco Labor Council. To this end Mr. Gallagher would like to meet you at the mayor's office, and in my presence discuss the situation in a friendly way—the three of us seeking to reach a unanimous conclusion. If you think well of this, please name some day and time of this week, the place to be the mayor's office in the City Hall. Trusting you may see your way clear to what is requested, I am.

"Very respectfully yours,

"EDWARD R. TAYLOR, Mayor."

CALHOUN'S REPLY.

"Hon. Edward R. Taylor, Mayor of San Francisco—My Dear Sir: Your letter of August 21 was received by me about seven o'clock yesterday evening, when I reached my office for the first time during the day. I then had but a few minutes at my disposal and could not answer it. Other engagements have kept me away from office today until this moment. I trust, therefore, ask your indulgence for not having sent you a prompter reply.

"It would give me great pleasure to meet with you the unfortunate result upon the trade and commerce this community, inaugurated by certain gentlemen who call themselves leaders of organized labor and who have formed an unlawful conspiracy for the title of The Campaign Strike Committee. This committee is composed of ten representatives from an association known as the Building Trades Council, ten members from other association known as the Labor Council and five members from an association of the Carmen's union. These men have levied a boycott upon the business of the United Railroads, have established a system of pickets, whose duty has been to interfere with people riding upon the street cars of this city, and who, in many instances, have insulted and attacked passengers who had left the cars, have followed many of them to their homes, and made a record of their names. In many instances the so-called Campaign Committee have sought to boycott and injure the business persons who have incurred their displeasure by traveling upon the street cars of this city. Outrage upon outrage has been committed by these so-called pickets, who are under the sole direction of this Campaign Strike Committee. Fines have been imposed upon members of the respective unions represented by the Building Trades Council and the Labor Council. Assessments have been imposed upon the members of these unions. It is publicly stated that the men of the Building Trades Council have contributed $110,000, and the men of the Labor Council $27,000. In support of this unlawful conspiracy against the trade and commerce of this city.

CONSPIRACY CHARGED.

"There is no doubt that you will recognize, as an eminent lawyer, such acts as these gentlemen engaged in form a conspiracy to commit a violation of the common law. But we are in a position to measure their actions by the law of the state which to measure their actions was passed by the late Legislature on not, well by calling on you at the mayor's office, in the City Hall, at 11 o'clock tomorrow.

"Very respectfully yours,

"PAT CALHOUN, President."

FOR THE MAYOR.

Aug. 25, 1907.

"Hon. Edward R. Taylor, Mayor of San Francisco. My Dear Sir: The statements published in two of the morning newspapers and a purported interview with you, in which you are quoted as saying that you cannot understand why I would not meet Mr. Andrew J. Gallagher, rended it imperative that our correspondence and an accurate statement of our conversation yesterday morning on the subject should be published, I, therefore, beg to hand you herewith memoranda dictated by me yesterday for my private files. Immediately on my return to my office, giving in substance my recollection of our interview. I send this in order that if there is any substantial difference between us your statement and my own may be laid before the public at the same time, if you should so desire. Very respectfully yours,

THE CONVERSATION.

"August 24, 1907, 12 o'clock noon.

"Memoranda of a conversation just held between Mayor Edward R. Taylor and Patrick Calhoun, at the Mayor's office, in the city hall, in the City of San Francisco, in the presence of Supervisor Thomas Magee and Patrick Calhoun Jr.

"In accordance with my letter written yesterday to the Mayor, I called upon him at the city hall, arriving there a few minutes after 11 o'clock. Upon entering the Mayor's office with my son Patrick I found Supervisor Magee present. The Mayor asked Mr. Magee to remain. "After formal greetings, the Mayor remarked that he regretted to have received my letter of yesterday, as he believed that a settlement of the strike would have been affected by making concessions to the strikers.

"I replied to him that it was out of the question for the United Railroads to hold any negotiations whatsoever with the so-called leaders of organized labor, who had gone out of their way to attack the business of the United Railroads and interfere with the commerce of this city. "The Mayor said that he felt that I ought to make some concessions to the Carmen's in order that the railroads might give full service.

"I replied that the electric railroads were giving full service north of Market street, and all the service south of Market street that the travel justified, and that this service would be increased as the travel warranted.

"CLAIM TO HAVE EVIDENCE.

Sensational evidence is said to have been procured against this suspected employee. In goods that were supposed to be his own property the detective claim to have found apparent proof that the articles have been stolen. Plunder which has been taken from baggage at the depot has been traced, says the detective, to this particular spot, comparison of the lot has been made with the description of the stolen goods, and the link has seemed to be perfect.

Detective Ryan has declined to state at what moment the trap might be expected to fall. He is presumed to have made out his case, and yet has delayed the formal move in the long hunt.

For nearly six months the depredations of thieves in the ferry depot have been going on. It is estimated that $75,000 worth of plunder has been taken from luggage. The company's detectives have been nonplussed in their search for the thieves. They have decided long since that only men connected with the corporation could be guilty of the crimes.

The task has been to hunt down the suspects, eliminate the men who are innocent, and fasten the offense upon the guilty. It has been suspected that more than one man operated in the systematized thievery. The desire of the railroad company was to locate the ringleader, and now the ringleader is believed to have been found in Berkeley.

The theft of a valuable trunk belonging to a Los Angeles man brought the detective on the trail of the employee whose home is in the college town. This missing trunk contained silverware and a half dozen suits of clothes, with other valuables.

TRUNK TRACED TO BERKELEY.

The trunk has been traced to Berkeley. It is believed to lie now in the apartments of the suspected Southern Pacific employee, who is under surveillance by Detective Ryan and his men. The stolen suit of clothing contained labels of Denver and Los Angeles clothiers. Such labels have been found on the stuff in Berkeley, while other labels on the goods have been cut out, apparently to prevent identification. Silverware corresponding to the stolen silver has been found. The identification is to be made complete when the owner of the stolen stuff examines the goods in Berkeley, and an arrest will then be made.

"When you said before that you assumed none of the duties of president at the time, did you mean that you did not act as president when you presided?" asked Mr. Delmas.

"I did not consider that I was assuming the duties of president," replied Scott testily. "If you want to have it so, why not right—I'll say yes."

OLD SOLDIER TAKES HIS LIFE

Hammond W. Clark Meets His Death By the Gas Route.

Hammond W. Clark, an old soldier with a creditable record of services to his country rendered during the late civil war, took his life in a most determined manner this morning at a temporary home, 806 Madison street. For one month past he had been occupying a room at that place and in the room cooked his meals.

In cooking he used a small gas stove with two burners. This stove was one of the instrumentalities used by him in his violent death, which was discovered only about 9:30 o'clock this morning.

Added to the gas stove were a couple of gas jets which had been used for illumination purposes.

Clark had locked himself in his room and failed to show up this morning. The ladies who run the house, Mrs. Hawks and Mrs. Pruet, tried Clark's door for the purpose of opening it, but found it locked inside and at the same time they discovered that gas was escaping from it in most disagreeable quantities.

They called in a stranger who broke in the door and there found Clark lying upon the table, life extinct.

He had taken most extreme precautions for the purpose of terminating his existence. The room was filled with gas, volumes of the deadly fluid escaping from the open jets in both the cook stove and the chandelier. The openings between the door and the frame and the windows, and even the keyhole, had been stopped up with old papers and rags.

Clark lay upon the table, his eyes covered with pieces of muslin which were tied tightly over them and secured behind his head. Another piece of muslin was used under the chin and tied on top of the head for the purpose of keeping the mouth closed.

Clark then lay down upon the table and when the deadly fumes through his nostrils, dependence and penury are supposed to have occasioned the tragedy.

Clark came to the house in question two months ago, short of funds, and paid his rent in advance.

PROPOSE NEW ROAD INTO CONTRA COSTA COUNTY

Supervisors Consider Building Thoroughfare Through Murry Township—Part of Land to Be Donated.

New county roads occupied the attention of the Supervisors for a time this morning and among them was the proposed thoroughfare, fifty feet wide, which is to extend in Murray township, from the southeast quarter of section 17, in township 2, south range 2, east, Mount Diablo base and Alameda, in a northwesterly direction to the line dividing Alameda and Contra Costa counties.

The viewers, County Surveyor Haviland and Hiram Bailey, reported that the proposed thoroughfare would be a public benefit and would afford an additional highway, connecting Alameda and Contra Costa county.

LINE PROPOSED.

The line of the road divides the lands of J. T. Quigley from the lands of the estate of Emma Stanley, deceased, thence over the lands of Quigley and William Manning to station on the line dividing Alameda and Contra Costa counties. The road is to be one and one-eighth miles long and will require land as follows: Stanley estate, .35 acres, J. T. Quigley 27.40 acres, William Mannus, 3.26 acres.

NO COMPENSATION.

Manning is the only person who consents to permit the building of the road through his property without compensation for land to be taken. The Stanley estate wants $20 for the moving of a fence. Quigley asks $100 for his land, building fences and removal of a house and damage for cutting his pasture off from the water. The cost of grading,

Just 11, it will only be after a long legal battle in the probate court before Judge Harris, for this morning when the will of the late Mrs. Cruess came up for probate, Frank Cruess, her husband, asked that it be continued for one week in order that he would have time in which to prepare an opposition. He would not tell on what line. His opposition to the will was, but it was intimated that he will claim undue influence was used on his wife when she signed the will a day before she died. Cruess has retained Attorneys Aldrich and Gentry.

The husband is not mentioned in the testament that was filed over a week ago. He is not the father of the young heiress who is named in the will as Marlin, but according to Cruess he is. Her custodian was not awarded to her step-father who married her mother when the child was a baby, but F. G. Porter was named in the will to act as guardian of the child and executor of the estate. Mrs. Cruess stated that he could act without bonds. One of the attorneys in the case sets the value of the estate at about $30,000, but the petition for probate of the will gives it not quite $23,000.

Porter will make a stand for admitting the will to probate. He will have the entire charge of the little girl until she becomes of age and he will also have the handling of the fortune that she will inherit until she gains her majority.

If Cruess succeeds in breaking his wife's will, he will try to get half of the estate.

BOY PERISHES BEFORE CROWD

Wrapped in Oil-Soaked Clothing, Child Incinerated Despite Heroic Work

COLTON, Aug. 26.—His clothing saturated with gasoline and his body wrapped in flames, Albert Gill, the 32-year-old son of Switchman Frank Gill of the Southern Pacific Company, was burned to death here yesterday afternoon in sight of a horrified crowd.

With his two brothers, 7 and 5 years old respectively, Albert had dug a hole under the gasoline storehouse of a local grocery firm. An oven was constructed by the boys and then Albert lighted the oil-soaked wood and rags with a match, while his brothers stood some distance away.

WRAPPED IN FLAME.

The flame was communicated to a gasoline tank near by and in an instant a stream of liquid flame wrapped itself about the child. With a shriek he tried to free himself, the get away, but the fire only burned the Mercer. Bystanders succeeded in pulling him away from the tank, risking their lives in the effort to save him, but his gasoline saturated garments clung to his body tenaciously and though the rescuers worked feverishly, the lad was burned to death quickly.

HEROIC WORK.

The fact that there was a vent in the top of the gasoline tank prevented an explosion and after flames had been extinguished 50 gallons of oil were drawn out. Had the tank exploded there would undoubtedly have been other fatalities, as the rescuers pulled the shrieking lad out from the vortex of the seething flames with little regard to their own danger.

BLAME WATER FOR ILLNESS

Hundreds of Vallejo Citizens Suffer From Attacks of Fever and Cramps.

VALLEJO, Aug. 26.—The condition of Mrs. J. W. Brophy, wife of the local manager of the Pacific Telegraph and Telephone Company, who has been lying at the point of death from drinking the city water, it is alleged, remains unchanged. The four San Francisco physicians in attendance hold out no hope for her recovery.

From one end of the city to the other complaints are pouring in to the different doctors asking for treatment for cramps and fever, and in every instance the water conditions are blamed.

Health Officer Fred T. Bond was summoned to the Good Temperance for Orphans' Home to treat sixty-five children of varying ages for water poisoning. He found them lying about the floor and on benches. Some were unconscious and many were writhing in agony. The dormitories were in an awful condition, the children having been taken sick in their beds and while unable to help themselves vomited over the floors and cots.

Health Officer Bond declares that unless the city gets a pure water supply the entire population will be in the throes of an epidemic which will result in wholesale mortality.

WINTER FIGHT AGAINST WHITE FLY PEST ADVISED

Woodworth Believes Dreaded Enemy to Groves May Appear in Scattered Regions.

BERKELEY, Aug. 26.—Professor C. W. Woodworth, the entomological expert of the State University, has received word from Bakersfield, where the white fly was found recently in the W. S. Tevis ranch, to the effect that the dreaded pest has been completely eradicated in that vicinity.

Professor Woodworth accepts these reports as probably correct, but still is inclined to believe that the white fly may appear elsewhere during the coming season, and he accordingly favors a vigorous campaign, calculated to prevent the pest from getting headway in any of the orange growing sections of the state.

TEXT OF STATEMENT.

He has prepared a statement, including the measures he believes should be taken, his recommendations being as follows:

"There are only two periods of the year when the eradication of the white fly can be undertaken with any reasonable hope of success. They are the two periods when all the individuals are attached to the leaves and possess neither wings nor legs. The longest and best period for the work is during the winter. While the insects may be able to feed and grow during this period, coming gradually to full size, they are finally brought to a standstill, being unable to transform into the winged condition until the weather is warmer. Thus it comes about that the insects that were of all sizes in the fall, reach the winged condition in the spring at the same time."

WINTER WORK.

The character of the winter work has been foreshadowed in describing that of the summer. The exact course to follow will depend, in a large measure, on the results of the summer's investigation. Certain general plans can, however, be now given.

"The horticultural staff would have to be greatly enlarged and separated into two divisions. To one would be given the defoliation work; to the other, the cleaning up and disposal of infested material. The latter division would act as a check upon the former division, and the staff of inspectors following them would insure that all is thoroughly done.

"This plan of campaign involves that the actual work of defoliation be done by those in charge of the work, and is the only practical method of securing uniformity and thoroughness. The cost of the work should not be assessed against the owners of the properties involved. The work of defoliation should be completed as soon as possible after the eggs are laid in the fall and the winged forms have disappeared.

"A program of work, like that outlined above, does offer some hope of the eradication of the pest; but unless ample provision is made for it and scientific accuracy and thoroughness insured by the appointment of the right kind of men to organize and direct the same, satisfactory results will not be secured."

be to assist the people of Marysville in making trees again out of the stumps now standing. They are in need of expert assistance. This staff must prove to the citizens of that town that they are endeavoring to be genuinely helpful, that this campaign will be managed with their interests uppermost. They will also make themselves familiar with every detail of the situation and be ready to take immediate charge of the defoliation of next winter.

"Second—There should be a staff of inspectors, working both in Marysville and the surrounding country, continually on the watch for infested trees. The work of this staff will have to be continued for at least a year after the last white fly is seen.

Mayor Taylor's Extraordinary Move.

It is to be regretted that Mayor Taylor should have been seduced into the error of attempting to do politics in the labor unions with the patronage at his disposal. It is still more regrettable and unfortunate that he should have attempted to use the power conferred upon him by his high office to force the United Railroads to make "concessions" (a euphemism for submission) to the Carmen's Union. The failure of Patrick Calhoun to respond to his summons to meet Andrew J. Gallagher, president of the Labor Council, is followed by threats to harass the United Railroads officially and forfeit the company's franchises. If Mayor Taylor were not fully established in the public mind as an honorable, conscientious man, this proceeding would subject him to the gravest suspicion.

As all roads lead to Rome, every move of the graft prosecution and the political regime it has established turns ultimately against the street railroads. These moves began in the boodling board of Supervisors the moment that body submitted to the dictation of the dog whip. Ever since all the head officials of the United Railroads were haled before the Grand Jury on the very day the car strike was declared, a multitude of acts have gone to give color to Patrick Calhoun's oft-repeated assertion that Rudolph Spreckels and his coadjutors were turning the movement to purify the city government into a predacious attack on his corporation. Now Mayor Taylor, by whose evil counsel we know not, has been led into the blunder of making the United Railroads the object of attack.

Following so soon on the heels of the unsuccessful attempt of Mr. Spreckels and his associates to get control of the Union Labor party, and on the eve of the municipal election, Mayor Taylor's move against the United Railroads is as pregnant with sinister suggestion as it is politically significant. His appointment of Michael Casey to the Board of Public Works and putting Captain Anderson at the head of the police force point the same way. Casey was the leader of the Spreckels movement in the Union Labor party at the late primary and Anderson was the police captain denounced to Mayor Schmitz by the business men of the city for shirking his duty when rioting followed the operation of cars after the strike. Andrew Gallagher and Richard Cornelius were associated with Casey in the scheme to make the Union Labor party a part of the political machine Spreckels is trying to build up through control of the District Attorney's office.

Casey, Gallagher and Cornelius are leaders of the more extreme, violent and illiterate element of organized labor. They are in antagonism to the Building Trades Council, which represents the best paid, most intelligent and most orderly and reasonable element of organized labor in San Francisco. Mayor Taylor did not ask Calhoun to meet and discuss the street car situation with McCarthy, Tuite, Macarthur and the leaders of the mechanic unions. He summoned him to meet Gallagher alone, Gallagher being the political emissary of Mr. Spreckels. If the object was not to force Calhoun to his knees and place Gallagher at the head of the Union Labor movement the proceeding is not intelligible.

If Calhoun is guilty of bribery he should be prosecuted and punished. If his corporation is not obeying the law it should be compelled to do so. If it is violating the terms and conditions of its franchises should be forfeited in accordance with law and by such regular processes as the law prescribes. But neither Mayor Taylor nor anybody else has the right to give the United Railroads the alternative of surrendering to the dictation of a group of labor politicians or rendering obedience to the law. Such an alternative compromises both the law and industrial freedom. However, it is perfectly consistent with the studied effort to make the car strike the chief count in the indictment of Calhoun and his subordinates for bribery. Calhoun is guilty of bribery or he is not, and the strike has nothing to do with the case. The compliance of the United Railroads with the law and the terms of its franchises has no relation to Andrew Gallagher and his assumption of control over the affairs of the street railway corporation.

Mayor Taylor is embarking on perilous experiments. He is not only intriguing against the integrity of labor organization and assailing the citadel of individual liberty, but he is trifling with the law and expanding his powers beyond the limits of legal authority.

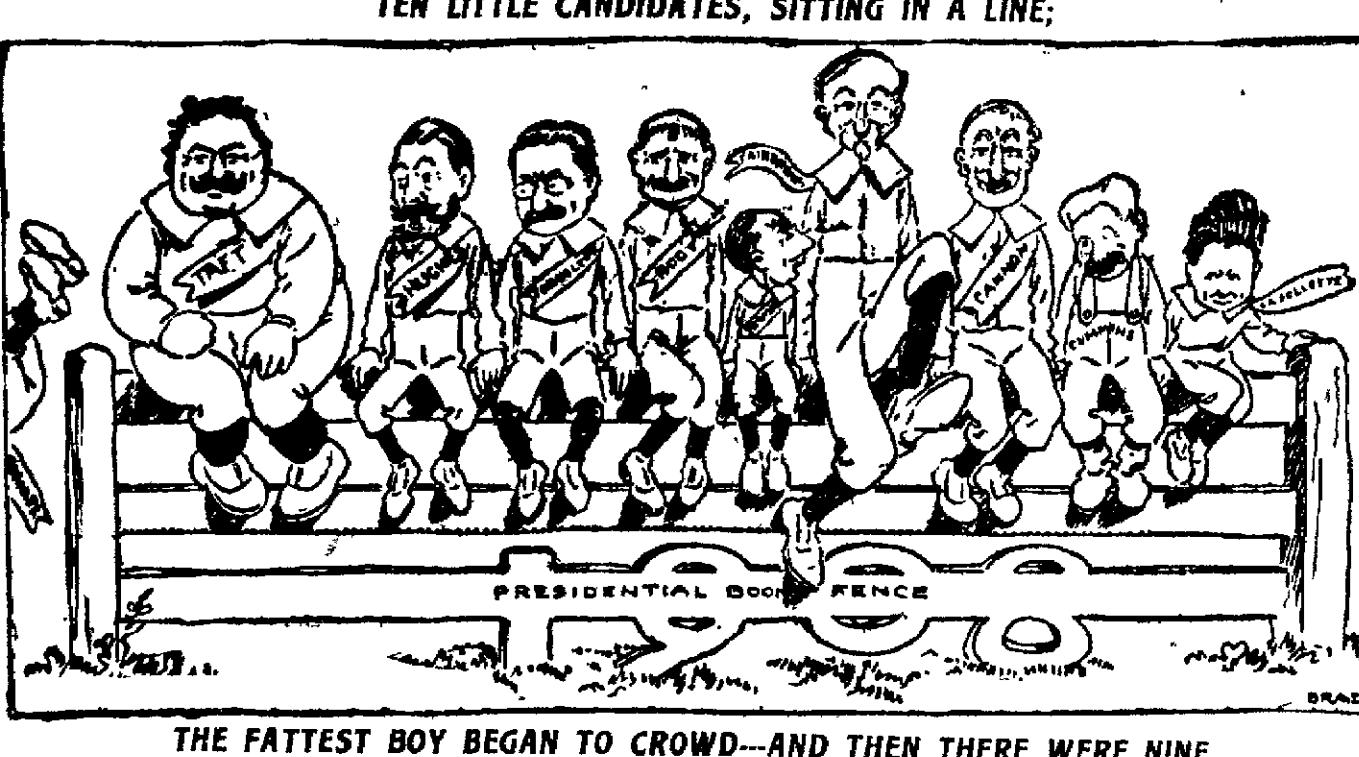

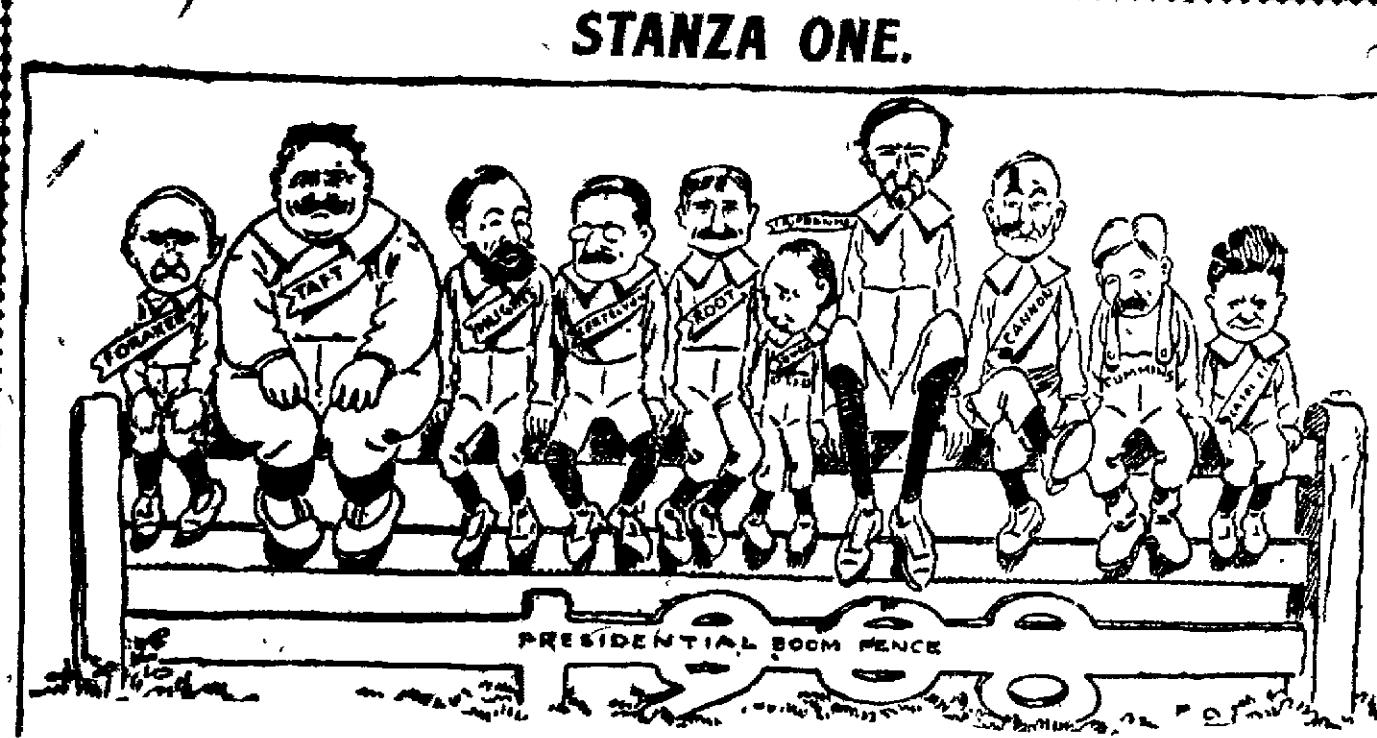

It is stated that several of Mayor Taylor's appointees are subscribers to the graft prosecution fund. No doubt these gentlemen subscribed to the fund from high and laudable motives, but their appointment to office is, under the circumstances, of dubious propriety. It is one thing to whip scoundrels out of office, but it is quite another to take the offices in pay for the money and effort expended in banishing crime and graft from the administration of public affairs.

Marriage to Dead Wife's Sister.

After nearly three-quarters of a century of almost continuous parliamentary effort the deceased wife's sister's marriage bill promises at last to become law in the British Isles. The bill has passed successfully through the committee stage in the House of Lords and is assured of final passage there. The bill originated in the House of Commons as a government measure and encountered but little opposition. While some former ministers have willingly supported the bill in the past, this is the first time in the history of the long contention over the question when a British premier ventured to assume the responsibility and risk of fathoming the bill.

With one exception, all previous efforts to carry the dead wife's sister's marriage bill through Parliament has encountered defeat. The House of Lords, where the opposition and influence of the Lords Bishops were strong enough to prevent its passage. And on that occasion—namely, in the parliamentary session of 1896—the House of Commons reversed its record by killing the bill. The vote taken by the lower house was in the nature of a rebuke to the throne for meddling with the initiation of legislation, as King Edward, then Prince of Wales, was personally interested, for family reasons, in the bill becoming law. He went so far in his advocacy of the measure as to occupy his seat in the House of Lords and cast a vote for it. Queen Victoria had been consistently opposed to the measure up to that time. The Commons took notice of the intent and resented royal interference in a popular measure by refusing to favor it until the time came when it was personally interested in its adoption.

The bill, which is now soon to become law, is retroactive, as it legalizes all marriages with a dead wife's sister contracted in the past and legitimizes their offspring. These marriages have averaged 1800 a year, for although forbidden by law, no prosecutions followed their contraction. The only penalty imposed on those contracting them affected the offspring chiefly in their relation to instances. The diversion of property rights which has taken place through the law's recognition of the illegitimacy of the offspring is protected by the bill, which thus prevents a flood of litigation growing out of its adoption. This feature in the bill has no doubt helped to overcome the scruples of certain members of the House of Lords and the influence of the Lords Bishops, for many titled families are concerned in marriages which it legalizes. It is represented that there are at present about 9000 persons in England alone born "illegitimate" on account of these marriages.

One peculiar feature of the act is that what it legalizes in widowers it prohibits to widows, for the latter are denied the legal right to enter into a marriage with the brother of a deceased husband. The British women thus look with disfavor upon the bill as unjustly discriminating in its provisions against them.

Senator Foraker's effort to make the tariff issue a raw-head-and-bloody-bones to affright the people at Taft's candidacy is an ignominious failure. Nobody has been frightened but the "American Economist," which professes to regard the Dingley act as among the commandments engraved on the stones given to Moses by the Lord. The people are not at all afraid of Taft and are nowise frightened at the suggestion that the tariff be revised by a Republican Congress, subject to the approval of a Republican President.

FOOTPAD FELLS VICTIM; COMPANION ARRESTED

(Special to THE TRIBUNE.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26—Bob Carroll, a laborer, was held up and robbed near the Six-mile house on the San Bruno road at an early hour this morning. Carroll had been spending the evening in the resort and had taken a number of drinks with a man named Dempsey, who met him for the first time. Dempsey left the place about 12:30 and Carroll followed soon after. He had gone but a few steps from the resort when he was suddenly knocked to the ground and robbed of about $5. Carroll cried for help and his shouts were heard by Proprietor Isle of the road house, who fired one shot after the fleeing footpad. The affair was reported to Policeman Garcia, and the officer, together with Policeman Bates later arrested Peter Dempsey, Carroll's companion of the early evening, and charged him with the crime.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The Metropolitan Opera House shows a far richer display of precious stones and rare gems than any place on earth.

On a gaudy night there must be many million dollars' worth of diamonds and pearls on view in that glittering horse-shoe gallery. It is a sight that is not surpassed and probably not equaled anywhere else in the world.

How easily a lady may carry on her person a vast sum in these tiny bits of sparkling stone is seen by the photograph which shows Mrs. George Gould wearing jewels that cost about a million dollars. Her collar, which is all of diamonds, represents at least a hundred thousand, and her tiara much more than that. She is said to have designed the tiara herself, having had it made to order in Paris.

Society Craves To Be Earnest

(BY MRS. GEO. CORN WEST.)

The craze of the day is to be, or to appear to be, earnest.

To be rich and beautiful is not sufficient; the real social leaders of the day are not content with these accidents of birth and fortune. They aspire to political influence or to be thought literary and artistic, and society follows the lead. It is the fashion to attend lectures and court Bernard Shaw, to indulge in oratorios and exalted tennis tournaments, to buy and sell in the Bosphorus.

The standard of education and culture is higher nowadays for the majority than it used to be in the old days. Formerly women stayed at home, and had more time to perfect their education but now they are taking up the writing of novelties, dairies and in the execution of feeble sketches. Then you had a few shining lights who stood out above the crowd, now hundreds are to the fore. It takes a remarkably clever woman now to become very prominent by her own merit.

ANOTHER SERMONETTE BY MRS. ROSE PASTER STOKES

"Give the Children a Good Education"

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—In the Jewish Daily Forward Mrs. Rose Paster Stokes talked to "worried mothers." While a factory girl, two years ago, she married E. G. Phelps Stokes, the philanthropist and millionaire, but being desirous to speak to the masses in the Ghetto, she volunteered her services to those who have no friends and who have no one to go to for advice.

She says: "It is perhaps mainly because of the efforts, through all the generations of just such 'plain uneducated' mothers that we have stepped forward and reached upward and outward with some measure of success. It may be that we should have got no further than the ape if it had not been for the all-consuming desire of the mothers of the human race to make possible for their children the taking advantage of education not afforded in their (parents') own day. Thus the world of men will some day be grown to manhood and we shall have the mothers in large measure to thank for it."

HONOR PARENTS

"There are many, many young men and women (unfortunately too many) who, after they get a smattering of book-knowledge their less (?) fortunate parents have not look down upon their fathers and mothers even when in many cases, the parents have made every personal sacrifice to make this knowledge possible to their children. Yet, all honor to those parents! Never have I known one father or one mother who, in spite of the estrangement, has regretted giving up much for what he or she has deemed the 'education' of the children."

"The word 'education' is quoted here because it cannot be deemed getting an education when a course in his school or in college has made one so arrogant and so little minded in a thousand other ways, that one becomes utterly blind to the superiority of sacrificial living over superficial learning or learning even that is not superficial.

"The only people education fails to ed-

Marriage License For Sale Cheap in Iowa

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., Aug. 26.—Miss Effie E. Wakehouse was very much disappointed when she found that Clerk F. Royer could not buy back the marriage license which he issued on June 15 to Harry E. Johnston.

Miss Wakehouse read in a newspaper of Hugo Hoffman, who wanted to buy a second-hand license. She said that soon after license No. 214 was issued to Johnston they had a quarrel and the engagement was broken off. He gave her the license and she has no use for it and is willing to sell it.

PRETTY GIRL; VEST BUTTONS CHANGED; DIVORCE CASE; NOW LOSES HIS WIFE

Wife Said Was Her Job, Not Stenographer's

DES MOINES, Aug. 26.—Because he asked his stenographer to change the buttons in his vest one day when he was in a hurry, Elmwood Austin Royer, one of the organizers of the cranberry trust, lost his wife in the divorce courts.

Mrs. Royer claims that her husband was altogether too confidential in his relations to his confidential secretary, but Royer says his wife is jealous, and declares that the only reason she got a divorce was because of the occurrence above related.

and the gems worn in this picture are not half of Mrs. Gould's stock. She has several tiaras and collars. She owns no such stomachers as the unrivaled one that Mrs. Astor possesses, but she has a wonderful bird of Paradise, set with diamonds, rubies, emeralds and sapphires, with which, on occasion, she decorates her corsage. She has fifty costly rings, of which she wears a few at a time, in varying combinations.

NO HEIRLOOMS.

A notable fact about her collection is that it includes no heirlooms. That may, from one point of view, detract from its value; but on the other hand, most of it was specially designed for its owner, and every piece is newly set and represents the very best modern workmanship. The whole of it has been given to her by her husband during the eighteen years that have passed since the eldest son of the late Jay Gould married Miss Edith Kingdon, a clever young actress in Augustin Daly's company. Rich as George Gould is, there are a good many richer men in New York, for he had to share with five brothers and sisters in the great estate left by his father; but surely there are very few more generous husbands.

Mrs. George Gould has never been called an ostentatious woman. She has won both respect and popularity in society, but her first interests have always been at home, and the fierce light that beats about the lives of America's social leaders has revealed her as a devoted mother to her six children. For her, a million dollars' worth of jewelry is no vulgar display. It is merely the proper apparel, in these luxurious days, of her wealth and station.

Another Baby Who Will Inherit

20 MILLIONS

ESSEN, Germany, Aug. 26.—When Frau Bertha Krupp von Bohlen Halbach's son was born last week in her splendid Villa Ingel the event was made known by the firing of a Krupp cannon on the castle terrace.

This son will be a prince and his birth was registered with princely honor. He will be christened William Albert, after the Emperor and his mother's late father.

The Emperor has already expressed a desire to be the child's sponsor and he will be consulted in regard to the boy's education and training.

Franz Krupp von Bohlen Halbach had vowed that if her child was a son she would found a number of far-reaching philanthropic institutions for the benefit of her 50,000 workers. According to the will of the late Herr Krupp, when the baby reaches his majority he will be the owner of the works and the fortune of twenty million dollars left by Krupp will also pass, with interest, into his possession.

Another provision of the will is that the boy shall be brought up for a business career and shall receive a sound commercial education.

Europe's Richest Bride Princess Marie Will Be

PARIS, Aug. 26.—Princess Marie Bonaparte, a kinswoman of the United States Attorney General and said to be the richest unmarried woman in Europe, is about to wed Prince George of Greece, grandson of the present King and in direct line for the throne. From her maternal grandfather, "Monte Carlo Blanc," she inherited a fortune which is now estimated at $15,000,000. Lord Townshend's case in London brought to light a matrimonial agency there which claimed to be seeking a suitable husband for this princess, expecting to get a commission of $200,000. But there is nothing to show that she knew anything about it. Princess Marie is a great admirer of Americans. One of her closest friends was the late wife of Count Revontlow, Danish Minister in Paris, who before marriage was Mary Davidson, a St. Louis belle.

SONG OF THE RUBY

BY ARCHIE SULLIVAN.

The heart of me is red with blood, the eyes of me are crimson fire,
I light the way for all true lovers, across the land of heart's desire.
I cannot rest, I cannot sleep, I am at war with everything—I stain a queen's white marble throat, and play at signet to a king,
I watch the years go slowly past, and armed nations drifting by,
And only know that hearts, and lips, and blood are not so red as I.

WOMAN SURGEON WHO HAS A RECORD UNSURPASSED IN SCIENCE IN ANESTHETIZING PATIENTS

IOWA CITY, Ia., Aug. 26.—Dr. Leora Johnson, one of the foremost woman surgeons in the world, has resigned from the faculty of the Iowa College of Homeopathic Medicine after fifteen years of service.

Dr. Johnson has a record in surgery that in many ways is unequalled. She has anesthetized 2500 patients without an accident, a record, surgeons say, that has not been made by any other woman surgeon in the world. It is, moreover, a record duplicated by no man surgeon.

Usually Pretty Girl Waitresses Desire to Be Tipped

"The girl waitress is neat, usually pretty, attractive, and in general competent. She gets small wages, varying according to the hours she serves and the work is certainly heavier for her than for the man in a similar capacity. But these considerations do not appear to enter into the question of tipping any more than does the fact that the serving maid usually is just as attentive and far more accommodating than the man—her chief attraction lies in her appearance and pleasantness, and neither is a good foundation for the browbeating, overbearing tactics which assure a tip for the independent waitress, whether he gives good service or not."

Young But Has Opinion

I am only sixteen years of age, but I agree with Mr. Schwab that a woman's sphere begins at home. Woman was not made to earn the bread and butter or to win the honor for the family. Her place is at home raising her children so the world will be better for their having lived. I also think that the goal of a woman is having a happy home for her husband. I do not think a society woman is a benefit to the world.

Discussion Is Very Good woman question that I am tempted to again rush into print.

Mr. Schwab, poor man, was probably unsuspicious of the furor his little interview would create.

It has been productive of some good, however, in demonstrating the fact that the Smart Set, or certain numbers of it, have brains.

Mrs. Fish answered Mr. Schwab in a very intelligently decisive manner, but, for goodness sake, why not let poor woman feel as if she had a career, why not let her find it. All women are not born with domestic instincts. Why spoil a good business woman in order to make an indifferent wife and housekeeper. Such a woman is a failure as a mother. I think our instinct drives us to seek the best that is in us; if we cultivate our talents we are successful, if not, we are fail.

Educate our girls first, so they may be able to choose intelligently.

Let those who are successful, for such women come our best children, mentally, morally and physically. While the woman who is dissatisfied in the home creates a child who is restless and of the same disposition, always longing for the unattainable. The traits grow with the child and dominates it when grown to manhood or womanhood.

It is not quantity of offspring we are after, but quality.

SARA MOORE.

Who Do You Think Is Right?

Here is a chance for the women readers of the woman's page of THE TRIBUNE.

Charles M. Schwab, the millionaire steel man, says that the sphere of a woman's heart yearns for a home of her own. Grant her the success for she has been striving; is the woman a career contentedly happy; and what is the value of her success to the world?

Side by side with her success (the band's ambition) the happy faced woman, who are going out into the world with clean, honest morals, and that if the woman with the home is not happiest and her good to the world greatest.

Woman Is Helpmate

God created woman as a help-meet man. Why imitate Eve and depart God's plan, tempted by the serpent, biting, eating the knowledge fruit, for all we have of Eden, a happy life?

For money—men need part-furnishing faith, hope and love more. Let us be stenographers. Farms—modeled status as grand as a noble poem seem as a pure daughter, planned as a baby's skin. Happiness, her whom children call blessed, a husband praiseth! Home-makers are wheels of the world, career-seekers stones or flowers by the way.

HETTY GREEN SAYS

That American Girls Are Too Extravagant

AMERICA'S RICHEST WOMAN

"Young girls of today are too extravagant. They think too much about clothes, and they don't have enough to do. If they had some useful work to occupy their thoughts they would not run to such extravagance."

"I speak from experience. Perhaps you don't know it, but I was quite a belle when I was young. But I outgrew all that sort of thing. These rainbow silks and metal fingers are not to my taste. I used to wear those things. I used to have more fixings and trimmings on me than there is on a Christmas tree. I have more sense now."

"Society hasn't enough to do to keep it out of mischief. Those so-called fashionable women spend all their time these days at bridge and smoking cigarettes and drinking pale tea and strong whisky. Every one of them ought to be down here, working, and they would be better off."

SOCIETY AIRS.

"The other some of those people put on on that sort of them made pants for their children out of their husbands' old trousers, and now they drive about in their own carriages and hold their noses up in the air as if the dust was too good for them. They do not know how to use their money yet. They are not accustomed to it. We had money in our family for four generations. Oh, they can't teach me anything about that."

So spoke Hetty Green to H. A. Horwood the other day. His talk and visit with her throws a new light on this famous woman. Among other things about her he says:

"To describe the real Hetty Green is a dual task. To describe her clothes and her personal appearance, or, rather, her face, separately, is to create two distinct personages, and yet I am not the alchemist who can amalgamate the two personages in a single description. It can best be undertaken as a description of the woman in the clothes and the woman behind the clothes, for even a mere man recognizes the fact that clothes and the woman are somehow a part of each other."

HER RAIMENT SHABBY.

"Her raiment bears the stamp of a shabbiness that is neither accidental nor assumed. It is a part of the woman's character, perhaps for economic reasons, perhaps because she is more contented in this fashion. Her faded bonnet might easily have anticipated civil war. Her shirtwaist of black cotton with white polka dots was not made for a woman of an entirely different size, but it was a trifle she buttons. This defect was hidden, or less, by a cap so ravished at the time that every time the breeze stirred it would fall off."

"To describe the real Hetty Green is a dual task. To describe her clothes and her personal appearance, or, rather, her face, separately, is to create two distinct personages, and yet I am not the alchemist who can amalgamate the two personages in a single description. It can best be undertaken as a description of the woman in the clothes and the woman behind the clothes, for even a mere man recognizes the fact that clothes and the woman are somehow a part of each other."

MAY NOW WED WIFE'S SISTER

English King Secures Passage of Law Long Fought by Clergymen.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—By the King's will, an Englishman now may marry the sister of his dead wife.

After thirty years' struggle this law, which has been the cause of more newspaper paragraphing and stage jokes than any other piece of legislation ever undertaken and actual debate upon which has stretched into many months—became a reality last night, when the House of Lords, in response to the personal influence of King Edward VII, enacted the measure, despite protest of the British clergy.

In its three decades of struggle, for statutory recognition the bill has several times been passed by the House of Commons, but the influence of the Archbishop of Canterbury and ecclesiastical orders has always served to encompass its defeat in the upper chamber.

KING TO RESCUE.

But King Edward has come to the aid of the workers who may wish to take their sisters-in-law to wife—and perseverance has.

The passage of the bill will alleviate the matrimonial difficulties of a number of peers, retrospectively legitimizing their children. These peers married deceased wives' sisters abroad. The marriage there was legal, but in England it was illegal. Outside of the peerage many influential families are affected. England is glad of the passage of the bill, because it removes an anomalous condition of the marriage laws here. Before, a man could legally marry his wife's sister in the colonies, but the marriage was held to be illegal here. The children being legitimate in the colonies were illegitimate in England.

BIG CROWDS WITNESS TRAINING PUGILISTS WORK

Gans Makes Great Showing in Gymnasium—Tonopah Will Have Labor Day Fight.

By EDDIE SMITH.

Yesterday was visiting day at the fighters' training camps, all three of the teams being overrun with visitors.

Joe Gans announced a few days ago that he would keep open house and that everyone was as welcome as the flowers in May. This announcement no doubt acted as an incentive for the fans. Two hours before the time that the men were to put in an appearance the crowd began to arrive, and by the time the fighters were ready to enter the gymnasium for their daily training stunts the crowd had packed the pavilion so tightly that they had a hard time in getting into the doors.

Gans being such a mystery in the past, his declaration that he would keep open house for this contest has not only met with the approval of the fans, but has made them exceptionally anxious to watch him at his work.

Gans is a past master in the art of training and it is little wonder that the exclamations of "Isn't he a wonderful fellow?" were heard so often while the crowd was passing out after the work had been completed.

The champion had gone through the many different exercises so often that he works like a clock while in the gymnasium. His every movement is as mechanical as possible, and when he punches the bar and pulls on the pulley weights his work will not vary the least bit one day from another.

The more people who have never seen the great negro at work watch him the greater they will believe him to be, for not only does he work with the skill of a master with the different apparatus, but his daily boxing bouts are well worth the price of an admission to an ordinary fight.

The remarkable cleverness of the colored champion is not shown at its best of course in the practice bouts, as he is sure to become a little careless with an opponent that he knows is not even near his master, but nevertheless the ease with which he pushes aside the leads and counters of an opponent in the training camp is well worth a long ride to see.

Gans really boxes with such ease that the general impression among those who have no idea of the finer points of the game might lead one to believe that he is not so hard to hit as some would believe. In fact I have heard boxers declare that if they had a chance to box with the champion they would use this or that punch and surely land it on him.

My what a disappointmen they were treated to when they got on the gloves with the colored boy and tried the favorite punch, for they invariably found that old block was there to stop their punch or Joe was not at home to receive them.

Al Kaufman, who is also training at Croll's, went through his regular exercise and impressed the spectators with his improvement, both in boxing and strength.

Jimmy Britt and Joe Thomas entertained a large crowd at their quarters in San Rafael, but as the gymnasium at Shannon's is not as large as the one at Croll's, the fighters were unable to entertain as large a crowd.

Those who did gain an admission, however, were well satisfied with the work of the two men and went away satisfied that both were in perfect condition.

At the training quarters of Schreck and Ketchel down Colma way the crowd was not quite as large, but just as enthusiastic as that which visited any of the camps about the bay.

The fighters went through the regular work in the gymnasium with a vigor and then went three fast rounds with the gloves on the especially arranged open-air ring.

Tonopah will be the scene of a great battle to a finish on Labor Day between a fighter who many years ago was a good man, but who at the present time is long past his time for usefulness in the ring and a man that nobody knows or perhaps cares to know.

Young Peter Jackson and Terry Mustain are the principals that are slated to pummel each other until one is rocked into dreamland.

Young Peter, who was really a good man in his time, has been stalling for a long time through six round bouts where his past experience has made it possible for him to stall along with his younger opponents and last the limit in no decision contests.

If Mustain is half as peppery as his name would imply, then the contest should be a great contest in which an old warrior who has run the gauntlet of all the men in the game that would take him on, taking a beating for a time and then gently laying himself down to sleep. The management of the affair, to make sure that the principals get a few punches that will hurt them, have ordered a pair of three-bounce gloves made for the occasion.

The chances are that the contest is being advertised as the world's championship contest between the greatest fighters in their weight division living today, but Young Peter has been too long in the game to take much beating and will stop before he gets beat up much.

JACK BROWN.

With the Reliance Club's boxing night only one more day away, the boxing fans are warming up to the prospects of having a good night's sport with a vengeance. Yesterday was the one big day for the management of the affair. The sealing all being new to the ushers, a rehearsal was gone through and the men made familiar with the arrangements.

Manager Smith announced after the rehearsal that everything was now ready and the visiting fans would find that the Piedmont Pavilion, which the club has secured as its future quarters, is the real place to see boxing contests.

The spacious pavilion is large enough to handle a crowd, and the spectators at tomorrow's opening will be shown not only have a fine view of the bouts from any place in the gymnasium, but the comfort of having plenty of room and ventilation, which is a great factor in making the new home of the Reliance Club comfortable.

Jack Burk of Sacramento, who with Paul Gullin of San Francisco will supply the main attraction at the opening night, has arrived in town and is reported in perfect condition. Jack has his

BURGLARY CASE
ONLY A JOKEWOMEN FIGHT FOR PROPERTY

Charles Barromeo Laughs at Idea of Being Tried for a Felony.

Because his client thought it a joke to be held on the serious charge of burglary, and would not listen to the legal advice of counsel, Attorney Charles P. Droll, of Alameda, appeared this morning before Judge Odell and asked that he be excused from defending young Charles Barromeo, whose trial was to be set today.

"I have tried to set up a defense for the young man," said Droll to the court, "but he will not listen to me. He seems to take the matter as a joke. I wanted to build up a strong defense for him, but he will not help me. We cannot agree on anything, and I think he ought to go to trial. I have agreed to go to trial with him, but I think he is partly to blame for the son's stubbornness. They think because he is out on bail that he should not be afraid of the courts nor should he make a fight along the lines I have prepared."

"The defendant, you must understand," spoke Judge Odell, "has the right to choose whatever defense he so desires, but I would presume that it would be better for him to pay some attention to the course laid out by counsel unless he considers that his defense is a better one."

Barromeo is charged with breaking into an out house of Mrs. Marie Dillingham of Alameda on April 11 last and stealing a dog and two pigeons. After having called a lawyer from the case he told the court that he could have another lawyer within a week, to which date the case was continued to be set for trial. The young Italian said he knew just about as much as some of these lawyers when he left the court room. Droll suggested that the same Italian attorney be procured in order to make peace with Barromeo Sr.

TRAIN UPSETS;
21 INJURED

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Aug. 26.—Twenty-six people were injured today, none seriously, in the derailing of the north-bound train of the Southern Railway at Red Hill, nine miles south of here. The entire train, with the exception of the engine, overturned, but it was fortunately running at a moderate speed. The accident was caused by a broken rail. The injured were taken to Washington.

The train wrecked was the New York and Augusta express. All seven coaches were thrown against an embankment. The person worst injured is D. A. Boor, Washington mail clerk, who is hurt internally. The private car of Bird M. Robinson, president of the Mobile, Jackson, and Kansas City railway, was wrecked, but no one aboard the car was injured. The same crew was in the Thanksgiving day wreck when President Spencer of the Southern railway was killed.

The Paragon's Three Day Suit Sale

The Paragon Does What It Advertises to Do

The Paragon's great sale has been going now for a week, and from the crowds attending the store, from the business done, from the satisfaction expressed by all who bought, there is no doubt but that this is one of the greatest sales ever held in San Francisco—both from the value of the merchandise offered and from the actual number of women who attended.

The sale will come to a close this coming Saturday night, for by that time surely all the ten departments will be sold out.

We have been giving practically all of our time and attention to the sale in the ten departments and have been neglecting our departments devoted to suits and millinery.

Besides, our factory has gone right on making up new fall garments, for we cannot afford to lay off experienced, well trained tailors and cutters.

Consequently we have more stock than we wish to carry. So we said inasmuch as there are numbers of women visiting our store who never came before, why not get them acquainted with our Suits, Cloaks and Millinery? We therefore decided to give some suit values for three days that will eclipse any of our former efforts and excel in value anything to be found elsewhere.

Below we give a brief description of the garments, but you must see them to anywhere near appreciate their style and beauty.
